Course description and objectives

The ancient civilizations were knowing the industry of pottery, after many experiments were did. In the beginning, they made the pots from a stone and a tree, after that, they discovered the clay material, and used this material in daily live. But the important use for this material is in writing and recording.

The pottery is one of the oldest objects knew to man. It's helps the researchers in archeology to identify the history in excavation site from the soil layers, Pottery, ceramics and porcelain, through the study the objects, and method used to manufacture, materials, specifications and temperature are different.

It was found pottery and ceramics left by ancient human evidence that they made use of pottery.

The discovered pieces help researchers and researchers:

1. In the field of training students to document archaeological pottery. Using modern methods to study the pottery industry using digital computer software.
2. Develop students' skills in the field of archeology and dissemination of scientific research.
